City Transit -

Night people

Returning home from work

In the small hours.

Tired elderly women -

(Babushkas and shopping bags)

Have spent the late hours

Cleaning executive suites

Tired men -

Who have to work -

Because the pittance
Of retirement

And Social Security.

(So magnanimously given
By their overlords)

Will not entirely
Pay taxes and utilities
On that small piece

Of property
That they worked so hard
To attain -

So many years -
(Free (?) and clear (?))

But -

"No Hand outs!"

Say the officials
The people have dutifully elected.
"Let them (the people)
Provide for themselves"

Someone said
"Let them eat cake!"

No hand outs!!!

Her!

Every one

Wants and needs

A hand out.

A winning ticket

On the Irish Derby -

A smash at

Las Vegas

Etc.

And
The public officials
Elected by
These mighty people -
Are living on Hand Outs
Given them -
By these mighty people -

Who, wearily,
Get on the Public Transportation
And wish, To God,
They were only home.
The public officials
From the Highest -

here,
like common crows
On these tired
Souls.

They say:

"No dole for them"

"Let them make their way"

And the highest

Without a blush -

Three mansions -

Gardener - maids -

(private eyes)

The lesser cohorts

Vote themselves

50% increase

In salary.

And,

Who pays for this?

The night people -

Who take the last bus
from town.

"Take the money from the people,
Slap them in the face,
Put them in their place."

And,
We, the people,
Are so tired -
We can't get tired.
One thought only
In our head.

Get home -

And to bed.

Grandiose thoughts
From smokes

One too much to hear.

Too weary

To have axes to grind,

Just taxes to find

To keep these
